Spherion Recruitment Process Outsourcing Division to Become SourceRight Solutions

Name change more accurately reflects the strategic direction and focus of the company's RPO division

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — August 3, 2009 — Spherion Corporation (NYSE: SFN) today announced its Recruitment Process Outsourcing (RPO) division will change its name from Spherion RPO to SourceRight Solutions.

The company has chosen a new brand for its RPO division to more accurately reflect the direction of the marketplace. SourceRight Solutions will operate as a division of Spherion Corporation and will continue to provide the same market-leading recruitment services it has been offering companies for over eight years.

This new identity marks the ongoing evolution of the company's RPO services as corporations are placing an enhanced focus on more integrated sourcing strategies. SourceRight Solutions will continue to provide a unique sourcing approach to help companies find the most qualified candidates across a comprehensive range of positions.

"Spherion's RPO division is renowned for setting the agenda in the industry and providing innovative offerings that drive talent acquisition processes," said Roy Krause, president and CEO of Spherion Corporation. "SourceRight Solutions naturally leads us into the next generation of RPO services and more accurately reflects our focus and capabilities as a national and global leader in recruitment process outsourcing."

Rebecca Callahan, senior vice president of RPO services, commented: "The recruitment landscape has evolved and organizations are facing new challenges in identifying, recruiting and acquiring the best candidates. We have chosen a new brand to complement the direction of the market towards total workforce solutions and mark our vision for the future of the RPO division."
